

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A printing machine has at least one printing unit on which a web of material, which is to be imprinted, is imprinted by offset printing in a variable cut length. A folder is mounted downstream, in the direction of travel of the printed web, of the at least one printing unit. The folder may be located directly or indirectly from the at least one printing unit and has a variable cut length.